Telehealth, which includes telemedicine, involves the use of electronic information and communications to enable health care providers at different locations to deliver health care services to an individual when he/she is located at a different site than the provider. The services shall include the assessment, diagnosis, consultation, treatment, education, care management and/or self-management of a patient.

I understand that telehealth services are being delivered, and hereby consent to Prem C. Chatpar, M.D., and Associates, LLC. providing care services to me via telehealth.

Electronic systems used will incorporate network and software security protocols to protect the confidentiality of patient identification and imaging data and will include measures to safeguard the data and to ensure its integrity against intentional or unintentional corruption.

Expected Benefits:

- Improved access to medical care by enabling a patient to remain in or at a remote site while the physician obtains test results and consults from healthcare practitioners at distant/other sites.
- More efficient medical evaluation and management.
- Obtaining expertise of a distant specialist.

Possible Risks:

As with any medical procedure, there are potential risks associated with the use of telehealth. These risks include, but may not be limited to:

- In rare cases, information transmitted may not be sufficient (e.g. poor resolution of images) to allow for appropriate medical decision making by the physician and consultant(s);
- Delays in medical evaluation and treatment could occur due to deficiencies or failures of the technology;
- In very rare instances, security protocols could fail, causing a breach of privacy of personal medical information;
- The provider cannot guarantee that the encounter is confidential, as a person on the patient's end may be able to overhear conversations related to the patient's care;
- There are limitations to using telehealth for the patient's care as it does not involve a hands-on examination. For example, the encounter may result in a need for the patient to come to the office or another facility for further treatment: a patient-to-provider "hands-on" assessment, a procedure, a test, etc., and the patient must be willing to cooperate with that need should it be identified.
